ABOUT THE EVENT

Since 2009, Flyover Film Festival has grown from a grassroots showcase into a nationally recognized event for filmmakers from “flyover states” and beyond. It’s where Kentucky stories take the spotlight - and where filmmakers, critics, and audiences gather to engage, celebrate, and grow.

Every July, the Louisville Film Society presents the Flyover Film Festival - a multi-day event showcasing powerful films made in and about Kentucky, Southern Indiana, and the surrounding region.

From world premieres and national award-winners to deeply local stories and experimental shorts, Flyover connects creators, cinephiles, and community in one vibrant space.

OVERVIEW

- Premiere Screenings & Q&As
- Awards & Recognition
- Parties & Mixers
- Creative Venues & Local Flavor

The 16th annual Flyover Film Festival hits Louisville July 2026. Presented by the Louisville Film Society, this year's lineup includes indie films, documentaries, shorts, filmmaker Q&As, and parties around town! Venues will include screens at the Speed Cinema, Kentucky Performing Arts, Cinemark, and the Kentucky Science Center. Parties will be hosted at West 6th Nulu and Bourbon's Bistro, where the Jury Awards will be handed out - etched Woodford Reserve bottles, handpicked by LFS board members to highlight our local bourbon culture.

WHAT FILMMAKERS ARE SAYING

“We’re excited our film Sack Race with Knives was included. Amazing location, great theater, and thoughtful care for filmmakers with plenty of networking opportunities.”

JORDAN BARCLAY

“It was so special to bring King Coal to Louisville. A sold out show, fun Q&A with Dean Otto, and an engaged audience. The Speed Cinema sound and image were top-notch – such a luxurious setting.”

ELAINE MCMILLION
SHELDON

“Such a wonderful festival and group of people at the Louisville Film Society.”

HARPER BROCK

“My favorite part of Flyover was seeing Poof so skillfully projected at the Speed. It looked absolutely beautiful! It was thrilling to have something of mine shown there.”
